Introduction:

This part of my research paper also covers the literary works from British, American, Indian & some Commonwealth literature which readers often confuses. As we knew very well that there are three levels of learning viz. Memory level, Understanding level & Reflective level of learning. Usually readers used to memorize the literary works that is essential but this memorization must be supplemented with proper understanding .That's why , my research paper is associated with higher levels of learning i.e. Understanding & Reflective Levels of learning. I have tried my best in sequencing the selected literary works which readers often confuse. I strived hard to give a sort of continuity to my collection so that the readers may easily associate the various works of this collection in their mind. I have divided my research paper in two parts, as Part-I & Part-II. I am quite sure that after reading the both parts of this paper, readers will be able to differentiate & integrate the often confused literary works in an entertaining way. In my previous research paper "A Unique Collection of Literary Works Often Confused (Part-I)", you have read around 750 literary works which readers often confuses. Now, in the continuance of the previous research paper about 850 literary works are included in this Part-II, which are given below with their keywords highlighted in the italics.
